Free Trail Workshop

What better way to spend a cold February day than with fellow trail riding enthusiasts. If you have not had the opportunity to attend one of Bud and Gwen Wills' trail stewardship workshops you won't want to miss this one. The workshop is filled with fascinating twists and turns, what we all like to refer to as "Bud-isms" and an introduction to classic forestry equipment that you will want to add to next year's Christmas list.

Trail riding is topping the horse industry and it is up to each one of us to learn what goes into making a sustainable trail. After attending this workshop you will want to apply all your knowledge to your favorite trail systems.

If the February workshop fits your schedule please read further details below or CLICK HERE for a printable registration form

WHAT: A chance to learn how to build, maintain and utilize non-motorized sustainable trails within State Parks & Forests and private trail ways within the region.

WHY: Pennsylvania State land management agencies have contacted the PA Equine Council requesting assistance in maintaining non-motorized shared-use trails. These agencies are reluctant to accept volunteers who have not had

Writing Manure Management Plans

In Pennsylvania, there is increased emphasis on farm and nutrient management practices on equine operations due to expansion of environmental regulations.

Of the 31,000 operations which house horses in Pennsylvania, 23,250 are non-commercial operations and over 75

Horses To Be Well-Represented In Presidential Inauguration Parade

Twenty-five percent of the nearly 40 organizations that will take part in the Presidential Inauguration Parade will include horses.

On January 20th, the transfer of power in Washington, DC officially begins with the traditional Inaugural Parade. Over 3,000 organizations applied to march in the parade, with only 40 being selected. Of those 40, nine of them are equine organizations.

“We are pleased to see the equine community being well represented during the Inaugural Parade,” said American Horse Council President Julie Broadway. “Equines were an integral part of the foundation of the United States, and Presidents throughout history have appreciated and admired the grandeur of the horse.”

The most recognized equines in the parade will be the Caisson Platoon from Fort Myer, VA. In addition to their well-known, solemn duty of military funerals, the Caisson Platoon also participates in numerous historic processions performed by the Old Guard, as well as the notable honor of being included in Presidential Inaugural Parades.

The Michigan Multi-Jurisdiction Mounted Police Drill Team & Color Guard, from Ann Arbor, MI,

percent are on limited acreage, requiring intensive management. Horse farm operations have not been eligible for cost-share funding in the past and have not been regulated directly. Equine operations now fall under Act 38, Pennsylvania Nutrient Management regulations. Concentrated animal operations with over 8 AEU's per acre now need a nutrient management plan. However, farms with fewer than 8 Animal Equivalent Units (AEUs) are not regulated under the Nutrient Management Act. Operations with fewer than 8 AEU's frequently have fewer acres per animal unit and have the potential to pose a significant environmental risk. Under the recently revised DEP manure management regulations, all livestock operations that generate manure are required to have a manure management plan for their farm.

Managers of equine operations frequently do not have agricultural backgrounds and often need assistance in developing farm management plans. Therefore a two part educational program has been developed to help farm managers prepare their manure management plan. The program also provides practical information on best management practices that will help farm owners develop the will be participating in the Inaugural Parade for the third time. The Michigan Horse Council (MHC) will also be well represented, as MHC President Col. Don Packard, US Army Retired, will carry the MHC flag in the parade. This is also the first time a person not a member of mounted law enforcement has ridden with the group. "We are excited to be coming to Washington, DC," said Col. Packard. "There are 23 riders in this group, and they are bringing along a support staff of another 20 people who are also honored to be a part of such a historic event."

The 1st Infantry Commanding General's Mounted Color Guard of Ft. Riley, KS will also be participating in this year's Inaugural Parade. Established in 1992, the Commanding General's Mounted Color Guard (CMCG) provides a link to Fort Riley's historic past. Troopers and horses of this unit are outfitted in the uniforms, accessories and equipment of the Civil War period. From privates to officers, these men and women recreate American Horse Soldier at community events, parades, and official ceremonies. At the AHC's recent Coalition of State Horse Council's Fall meeting in October, the CMCG did a demonstration for meeting attendees at Kansas State University and then a short meet/greet with Q&A about their program.

The AHC looks forward to seeing all of the equestrian organizations with the distinct honor of participating in the parade.

World you like to get reliable updates on equine disease outbreaks before you travel? Every week there are reports of equine disease Alerts. You can get these alerts sent right to your email. Go to Equine Disease Communication Center web page and sign up today to get the information you need to plan your movements. Also there is a wealth of other information relating to Equine Disease and Vaccination, Biosecurity, State Veterinary Offices and much more. (<http://www.equinediseasecc.org>)

WHAT IS EDCC

The Equine Disease Communication Center (EDCC) works to protect horses and the horse industry from the threat of infectious diseases in North America. The communication system is designed to seek and report real time information about disease outbreaks similar to how the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) alerts the human population about diseases in people.

The goal of the EDCC is to alert the horse industry about disease outbreak information to help mitigate and prevent the spread of disease. Ultimately frequent and accurate information about diseases outbreaks improves horse welfare and helps to prevent negative economic impact that can result from decreased horse use due to a fear of spreading infection. As part of the National Equine Health Plan, the EDCC will serve as part of the communication to help educate and promote research about endemic and foreign disease.
